All of us have seen instances in which amputations were performed upon patients severely shocked from accidental injuries, yet with a successful result. But I have repeatedly seen such operations end badly, reaction seeming to be checked, and all the symptoms aggravated from the beginning of etherization. Many years ago I became satisfied that the effect of the inhalation of ether affords a tolerably fair test of the propriety of operation. A few whiffs of it may be given, the pulse being carefully watched; if this gains in force and volume, and becomes slower, the other symptoms will probably decline also, and the administration can be continued until the patient is ready for operation. If the pulse flags or becomes irregular the ether should at once be withdrawn. --Jno. H. Packard, of Philadelphia, in Medical Standard. The Importance Of Attitude In The Auscultation Of...

Reviews

An incredibly great book with perfect and lucid answers. Better then never, though i am quite late in start reading this one. You will not sense monotony at whenever you want of the time (that's what catalogues are for relating to if you question me).
